DOGS VS. HORSES. Efforts to Utilize the Surplus Dog Power Now Useless in the Country.

Boston Herald. Experiments of breeding, like those which have been so successful in the improvement of horses, are now being made with dogs to produce a style of animal especially fitted for harness. It is thought a desideratum to graft the splendid chest and breathing capacity of the bull dog upon the stalwart stock of the mastiff, which has been found too long in the back and legs. There are markets in Belgium where dogs are bought and sold for draught purposes as horses are at Tattersall's, and it is not unusal for a compactly-built and well-broken dog points out that there is a force equal to that of Niagara running to waste in the United States at the very beels of the people. He estimates that in our wasted dog power we have an idle force in America of at least 3,500,000,000 pounds, reckoning the strength of a dog at five hundred pounds, which is probably below the average. The consul says that there is not an article of merchandise, from a ton of coal to a loaf of bread, sold in any of our cities, which might not be more advantageously delivered by dogs than by horses, and he points out that in their employment a certain municipal advantage would be gained, for the litter made by horses is the most fruitful source of dirt in our city, to say nothing of the great saving in the wear ### and tear of the pavements. Tom Reed's Admission to the Bar.

McClure's Magazine. Mr. Reed soon gave up school-teaching. and thinking that a young man would have a better chance out west, he went to California. Judge Wallace, afterwards Chief Justice of California, examined Reed for admission to the bar. It was in 1863, during the civil war, when the legal tender act was much discussed in California, where a gold basis was still main-tained, that Wallace, whose office adjoined the one where Reed was studying, happened in one day and said, "Mr. Reed, I understand you want to be admitted to the bar. Have you studied law?" "Yes, sir; I studied law in Maine while teach-ing." "Well," said Wallace, "I have one question to ask. Is the legal tender act constitutional?" "Yes." said Reed. "You shall be admitted to the bar," said Wallace. Tom Bodley [a deputy sheriff, who had legal aspirations was asked the same question, and be said "No." "We will admit you both, for anybody who can answer off-hand a question like that ought to practice law in this country."

It is well understood by reliable dealers that have constituted for years past the standard flavors in all the markets of this country. That they are regarded as among the most successful and creditable products and are unquestionably, if the opinion of the best class of consumers is at all worthy of acceptance, the purest, strongest, and finest flavoring extracts in the world.
